

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A decoration article secured to the ends of an upper beam of a Venetian blind is mainly made up of a decoration unit, and a fixing mount wherein the decoration unit has a decoration piece disposed at one side to increase the overall beauty of the Venetian blind in display, and a retaining tube with screw locking hole disposed at the other side thereof to be securely engaged with a hollow coupling tube of the fixing mount for location thereof. The fixing mount also includes a horizontal contact plate to be attached to the lower side at the ends of a wooden or plastic upper beam or to the upper side of a metallic upper beam of a Venetian blind thereof. Thus, a blind fabric of various materials such as silk or lace, chosen according to the favor and taste of the users, can be collected around the hollow coupling tube of the fixing mount and held thereto to form a wavy arc pattern at the front side of the Venetian blind thereof and suspend regularly downwards in wavy folds at both sides thereof for further decoration, visually increasing the artistic texture of the Venetian blind in display, and economically boosting the benefits of the Venetian blind thereof in the market.